Overview

History often repeats itself. The past half dozen years, at least, have been replete with excruciating real-time examples of how divergent worldviews and limitations in perspectives have influenced the realities we believe to be true. And like never before, social media is being used as a megaphone for divergent views, escalating polarizing words and actions as witnessed in very recent examples of civil unrest locally and nationally.

NVMS Conflict Resolution Center is pleased to convene this panel discussion to deepen our understanding of the collective work of mediation, and to identify ways the practice of peacebuilding can proactively become an instrument for creating community ties that transcend demographic backgrounds.

Panelists:

- Sonia Aranza, Global Diversity, Equity & Inclusion Expert
- Karla Bruce, Chief Equity Officer, Fairfax County
- Alma Jadallah, PhD., President, Kommon Denominator!
- Walter Tejada, former Chair of the Arlington County Board of Supervisors
- Jacqueline Tucker, City of Alexandria Race and Social Equity Officer
- Moderator: Regine Talleyrand, Ph.D., Associate Professor, George Mason University
